Safety Inspections of the Fuller Warren Shared Use Path Are Underway

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. – Safety inspections of the Fuller Warren Shared Use Path are underway as construction on the I-10/I-95 Operational Improvements project nears completion. FDOT inspectors are verifying that construction items are complete in accordance with FDOT standards and specifications and the structure is safe and ready to open for public use.

Because several minor construction items have yet to be completed, an opening date has not been determined. Upon completion of all construction items and a thorough safety check, FDOT will make an announcement with the opening date as well as information on a ribbon-cutting ceremony, which is anticipated before spring 2023.

In keeping with FDOT's goals of improving safety and enhancing mobility, the Fuller Warren Shared Use Path will serve the residents and visitors of Jacksonville by providing pedestrian and bicycle connections between the Riverside and San Marco communities. Joining the Main Street Bridge and the Acosta Bridge, the Fuller Warren SUP will become the third point of access for pedestrians and bicyclists to cross the St. Johns River in Jacksonville.

The Fuller Warren SUP is part of the $126 million operational improvements project at I-10 and I-95, which began construction in spring 2017. Prime contractor Archer Western is expected to complete this project by spring 2023.
